

An email that I received from a new client on April 18, 2018 at 5:59 AM

Sent: Wednesday, April 18, 2018 5:29 AM

To: alphee@comcast.net

Hello Alphee,

I need your help, please, in locating my lost set of work keys.

In her email she explained how these keys were very important because the keys are used to open doors that have top security at her job.

Then she goes on.

I last used them on Friday the 13th, late in the afternoon to enter a building before driving away.

My astrology teacher ..her name was listed here. . (very well know astrologer), is the one who led me to you. She said you were an amazing astrologer AND you 2 share the same birthday.

This is the email that I sent her

Good morning,

I don't know how much I can help you find your keys. My record is very good in finding lost articles. I use a system call horary. Horary works when somebody phones you and asked you any questions. Supposedly the sky is lined up just right to give them an answer. The astrologer takes the time that the question was asked and draws a horoscope and reads it. In 53 years of this business I know the system works. The old astrologer would say if you get the question in the letter take the time that you read the letter and use that to draw a horoscope. So that should be the same for email...take the time that you read the email. But I found that the system doesn't always work or sometimes never works. But I'm using the time that I read the email but not guaranteeing anything.

Place yourself in the middle of the house and face East, then turn clockwise about 15° toward South. If you walk towards the wall what room would you be in? Check that room and pay a lot of attention. Once you are in this room search the East wall. The way the planets a lined up tells me that the keys are behind something or in something. You might even have to move something, look behind something or in a bag or something to locate the keys.

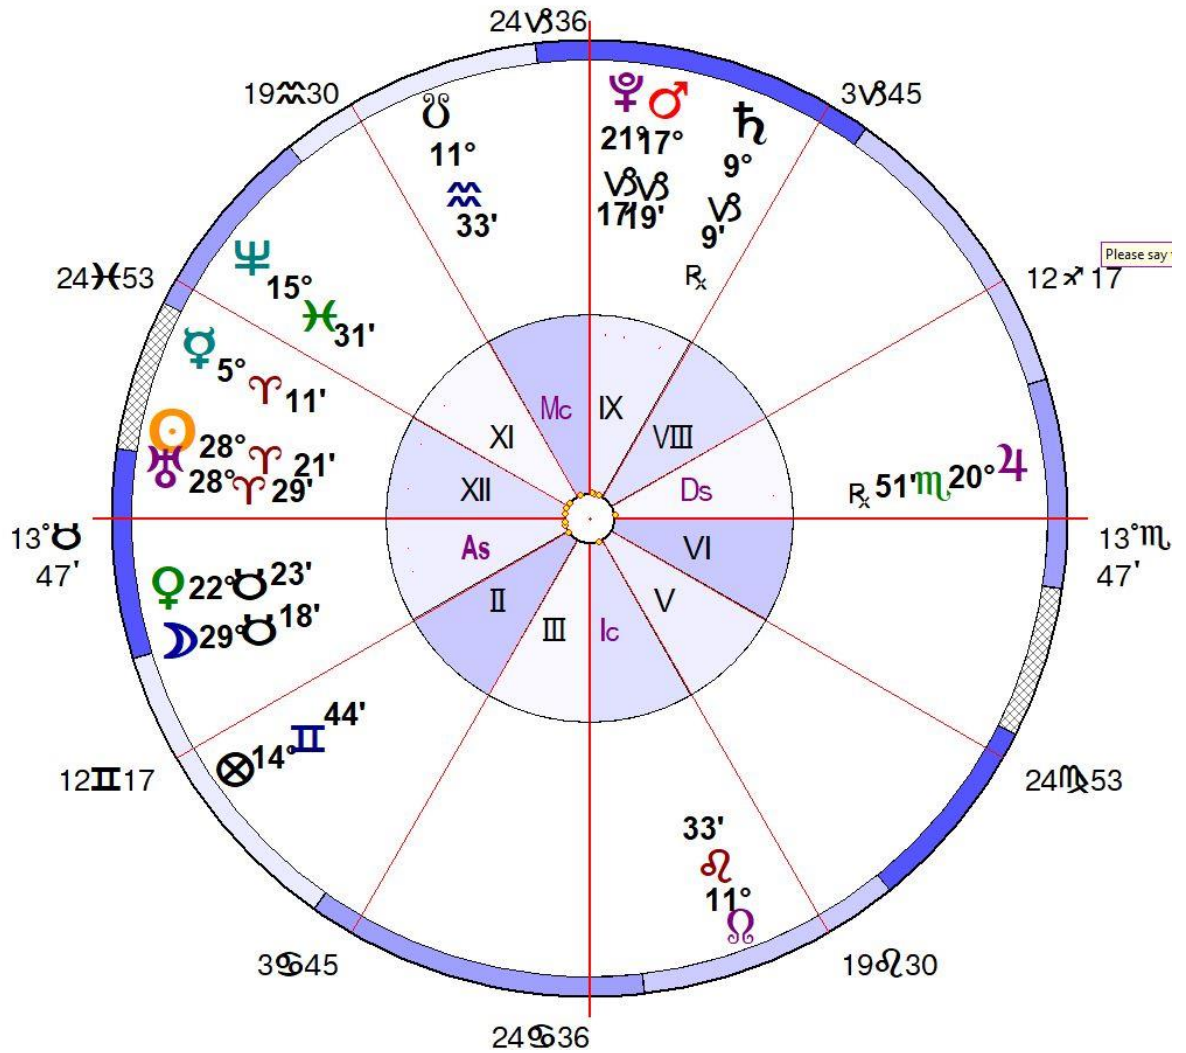

Let me know.

God bless,

Alphee

The email was sent to me on April 18, 2018 at 5:29 AM in the morning. I read the email at 6:51 AM. That's the time that I used to calculate the chart in West Hartford, Connecticut

LOST KEYS
Apr 18 2018 6:5100
TZ=4 W

Here is the email that I received from her later that day

Good Morning Alphee,

Thank you for your assistance in helping me find my keys!

I first spent time in the gym, where I last used them and did not find anything. Then I found them in my kitchen, on a hook on a cabinet door, in a very obvious place. Covering them on the hook was a sweater that I wore Tuesday in the early chilly morning, when I wrote you the initial email. It makes no sense; I would have seen them! How could I have hung a sweater on a hook that was holding the keys I was desperately looking for?

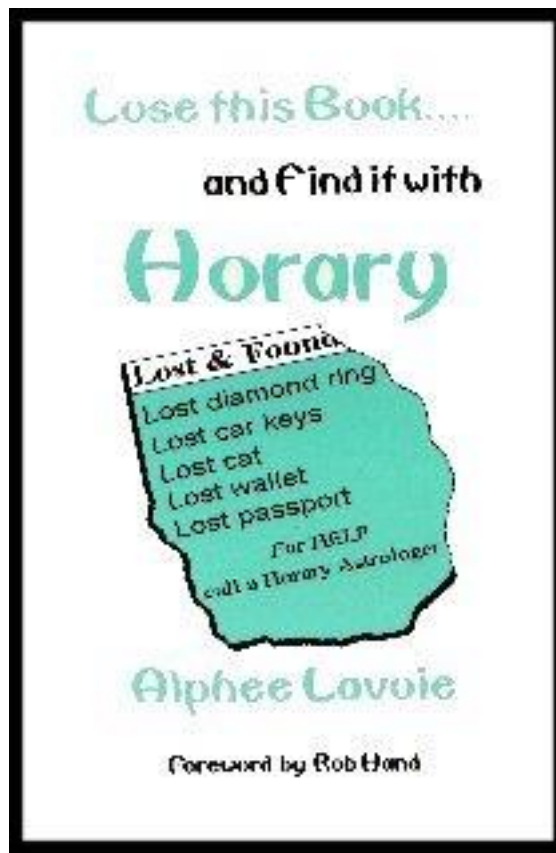

After I found them I then stood in the kitchen and followed your directions with a compass and the 15 degrees south was pointing right at them!

How did you learn this branch of astrology? I was wondering if it might be a good path for me to follow in my astrology studies. Any teachers or books you'd recommend? I am also a dowser and I could see these two fitting together well.

Again, Thank you for your help!

B.W.

My book on finding lost articles "LOSE THIS BOOK AND FIND IT THROUGH HORARY" is referred to as the Bible of lost articles by many astrologers.

Here's what Rob hand wrote in the forward of the book:

"I have known Alphee Lavoie for many years. I have known him to be a master of horary techniques. His method is somewhat of a modern school but no horary astrology is ever totally modern. It is traditional roots are too deep. And Alphee Lavoie's application of what he knows is among the best of any practitioner today. His specialty is also among the most traditional and at the same time most radical of horary problems, the finding of loss object. Other texts on horary and dealt with this techniques, but no other effects on horary to my knowledge has concentrated on this most difficult type of horary question. This may be something of the first and horary literature. And it is rendered by a master of the subject.”

Let's take a quick look at the horary chart

The keys are ruled by the second house. The house of possessions. So we turn to Mercury for the ruler of the keys. We find Mercury intercepted in the 11th house. The interception means that it will be harder to find. They are not in plain sight. We find the Moon void of course in the first house. My experience with the Moon void of course regarding lost articles, especially if it's in an angle, is that you will find the lost item. I also use the local space for compass direction. Mercury is in a fire sign so look on the East wall. There are lot more techniques to use in my book. I use five signifiers to help me describe the location and timing and more to find the lost items. The book describes possible locations in the house and outside the house. Every astrologer should have this book on their bookshelf.

Local space direction for the chart

